We will visit your office and deliver a presentation on the opportunities to engage with NICE early on in product development.

The usual visit duration is between 2 and 3 hours. You may request a customised agenda for the visit by liaising with our team in advance. Company staff based at other sites can join the meeting via web, video or teleconference.

Learn why early scientific advice engagement with payers is important, find out how to produce the best briefing book, choose from a range of exciting services that we offer to product developers and ask our team your questions.
