As a patient representative I have experience in the devastation AF brings not just to the patient but to the whole family. It impacts on day to day activities and any treatment that improves outcomes for patients should be reviewed and approved if proven to be safe, reliable. Speaking with patients who have received Pulse Field Ablation I have seen first hand the improvement to their quality of life following the procedure. Being able to share these experiences with NICE to come to an informed decision should be paramount for the well-being and outcomes for all those living with AF.
