

Decision support tool: making a decision about abdominal aortic aneurysm (AAA)

Decision aids

The tool can help you decide between treatment options.

It is for people who have an abdominal aortic aneurysm (usually called AAA or triple A for short) and who have been asked to think about surgery for it.

You can use this decision aid to help you talk to the team of healthcare professionals looking after you. This team is often called the MDT (short for multidisciplinary team), because it includes people from different health professions and specialties.

This resource was produced by NICE on behalf of NHS England.
