							menopause and the brain rather than specifically on hormone replacement therapy.
Professor Eef Hogervorst	Co-opted member	Direct – non-financial professional and personal interests	Wrote a piece in the conversation https://theconversation.com/menopause-hrts-brain-protecting-effect-may-be-overstated-182449	10.06.2022	11.07.2022	10.06.2022	Specific. Declare and participate. Rationale: Potential overlap with one of the topics covered in the guideline scope, however, not considered to pose a conflict of interest because it outlines some of the arguments related to potential effects of hormone replacement therapy on the brain but does not make a definitive statement on the impact on clinical practice.
Professor Eef Hogervorst	Co-opted member	Direct – non-financial professional and personal interests	Did an interview in June 2022 for beingpatientbraintalks on my previous HRT and cognition literature review and the article we published in the Conversation (see earlier DOI) on the possibly short lived effects of HRT on brain function.	14 June 2022 Online 20 July 2022	20.03.2023	On YouTube As a transcript online	Non-specific. Declare and participate. Rationale: Whilst this is relevant to the scope of the guideline the review this was based on was not included in the evidence review and therefore the talk was not specific to the topic under discussion.
Professor Eef Hogervorst	Co-opted member	Direct – non-financial professional and personal interests	Being part of the Women in Higher Education Network and Loughborough MAIA network to support women to obtain evidence-based information on menopause symptoms and management.	2020	20.03.2023	ongoing	Specific.
