Disclaimer

The recommendations in this guideline represent the view of NICE, arrived at after careful consideration of the evidence available. When exercising their judgement, professionals are expected to take this guideline fully into account, alongside the individual needs, preferences and values of their patients or service users. The recommendations in this guideline are not mandatory and the guideline does not override the responsibility of healthcare professionals to make decisions appropriate to the circumstances of the individual patient, in consultation with the patient and, where appropriate, their carer or guardian.

Local commissioners and providers have a responsibility to enable the guideline to be applied when individual health professionals and their patients or service users wish to use it. They should do so in the context of local and national priorities for funding and developing services, and in light of their duties to have due regard to the need to eliminate unlawful discrimination, to advance equality of opportunity and to reduce health inequalities. Nothing in this guideline should be interpreted in a way that would be inconsistent with compliance with those duties.

NICE guidelines cover health and care in England. Decisions on how they apply in other UK countries are made by ministers in the Welsh Government, Scottish Government, and Northern Ireland Executive. All NICE guidance is subject to regular review and may be updated or withdrawn.

The development of this guideline was greatly assisted by the following people:

Eric Meier and Susan Rowell conducted a bespoke analysis of the Prehospital TXA for TBI Trial.

Alexandra Bonnon was the main programmer of the original economic model evaluating tranexamic acid and drafted the model write-up. Sophia Kemmis-Betty peer-reviewed that model.

Muksitur Rahman and Alfredo Mariani assisted with the health economic evaluation literature review.

Matthew Stevens answered queries relating to two published economic evaluations.
