	2017): I participated in the recording of a brief talk on how to diagnose ADHD in complex cases – how to differentiate ADHD from comorbid disorders. This talk will then be made available for educational purposes via a publically accessible website. A fee was paid for my time that was paid to a departmental research support account at the department of Social Genetic and Developmental Psychiatry (SGDP), at King's College London. 5. SHIRE advisory board (20th February 2017). Attended a UK advisory board meeting held by SHIRE. The questions discussed were about the education needs for the development of child, adolescent and adult mental health services for ADHD in the UK. This included discussion on supporting local regions across the UK to develop their own local training programs, particularly aimed at non-specialist general adult psychiatrists. A fee was paid for my time that was paid to a departmental research support account at the department of Social Genetic and Developmental Psychiatry (SGDP), at King's College London.
