

Health and Social Care responses to domestic violence

Davina James Hanman

Method

- Mail out to all Community Safety Managers, Local authority DV Commissioners, Domestic Violence Co-ordinators, Children's Services, AVA mailing list (which in turn went into various other second tier mail outs)
- FOI requests to all PCTs
- FOI requests to all MH Trusts
- Some responses were contradictory suggesting that DV work does not enjoy a high profile in many areas

A tsunami of responses flooded my inbox...

But when I asked who pays for it...

- There is some work going on in health but they only seem to pay for around 20%. Much of what health receives is on the back of the voluntary sector.

- Once I asked who paid for Social Care interventions...

'We have found very few interventions funded by health. In fact very little data is collected in Essex to evidence incidence of DV among NHS service users. Screening here is very patchy, some ok, some non-existent, but no collation of data that we are aware of.'

'[We] commission a full range of health related services for the population it serves. As such any person with an identified health need, will be supported to access appropriate clinical services according to the health issue they present with'

*Most common:
'These issues are dealt with by the local authority'*

*Second most common:
'Perhaps the police may be able to help you?'*

Uninformative Barnsley: 'Contributes funding, with partners, to a range of domestic and sexual violence counselling services.'

*Short and sweet:
'NHS Hounslow neither
funds nor commissions domestic and sexual violence services and does not foresee doing so in the future.'*

*Astonishing: Bexley:
'Commissioned a comprehensive Sexual Health Needs Assessment (SHNA) where the issues of domestic and sexual violence were not identified.'*

So what is there?!

A number of areas fund a post to work within a health setting providing IDVA services, safeguarding support or as a caseworker. These posts are most commonly not funded from health budgets with the exceptions of Worth (IDVAs in A&E Depts in East Sussex); Reach (A&E at Guys); Moasic (Maternity at Guys); Advance (NWCL); Rise (Brighton PCT); IDAS (Sandwell PCT); United Hospital (NHS Bristol)

- Strategic posts in Barking & Dagenham;
Sutton; Hammersmith & Fulham; County
Durham and Salford

Forced marriage

- Liverpool PCT has a dedicated worker who operates out of the Social Inclusion Unit and is a specialist resource that provides awareness and support around forced marriage.
- Bolton PCT: Forced marriage and honour based violence is addressed under the domestic abuse work stream so again the first sentence above applies.
And the first sentence is...
We currently do not have a dedicated commissioning specification for this work

HBV

Mental Health Trusts

- 51 Trusts responded
- 5 have a domestic violence strategy
- 34 provide domestic violence training. Sessions range from 30 minutes to 2.5 hours except Mersey Care NHS Trust and Nottinghamshire NHS Healthcare Trust who both run whole day courses. Almost all training is based within safeguarding (ie only current abuse)

- All have a policy but most use a safeguarding vulnerable adults definition rather than the cross Government dv definition
- Only half have a standalone policy; the rest subsume it within a general safeguarding policy and in many, this is a single mention. Subsequent referral pathways and risk assessments are then also usually generic
- Six policies had a human resources focus outlining procedures for dealing with staff who are victims of perpetrators of domestic violence. Interestingly, in each case the staff policies were more comprehensive and provided a range of options for supporting victims of all risk levels than the policies aimed at service users.
- In terms of policy content, two issues stand out as key priorities: confidentiality and record keeping. Next most common issue was support for staff.
- Only nine policies specifically referred to perpetrators
- 23 referred to risk assessment but for ten, this was a generic RA and where domestic violence specifically mentioned, most only suggested referring to an IDVA or MARAC
- Three trusts had specialist workers: Dudley and Walsall Mental Health Partnership NHS Trust employ 1.5 (FTE) workers to provide practical and emotional support to victims of domestic and sexual violence; Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Mental Health Trust employ a specialist domestic violence health visitor and Norfolk and Suffolk NHS Foundation Trust employs a domestic violence/safeguarding officer to provide support to staff who are affected by domestic violence
