

Dear Lori,

We have read the ACD and it seems to generally be an accurate summary. There may be a couple of errors but please let me know if we haven't interpreted those parts correctly.

3.17 The probabilities of ICERs exceeding £30,000 and £20,000 appear to be the wrong way around.

4.3 We are not aware that the information that '30% of the patients in the trials responded to laxatives' was in the submission or the ERG report.

Best wishes

████████

Prucalopride for the treatment of chronic constipation in women

ERG Comment on ACD

West Midlands Health Technology Assessment Collaboration (WMHTAC)